

Open Call for Abstracts

JAMES ESSEX (1722-1784)

Architect and Carpenter

CHS Annual Conference in collaboration with Cambridge Faculty of Architecture
Queens' College, Cambridge, 31 March 2022

This one day conference precedes the Annual Construction History Society Conference from the 2022 and is specifically focused on the work of James Essex, an eighteenth century architect who lived and worked in Cambridge.

The conference proceedings will be published as book. The papers have mostly been decided but this is an open call for any researchers who wish to be involved in the conference and to contribute a chapter to contact the editors as soon as possible.

Abstract submission

Abstracts should be 300-500 words long and should include the full names, academic affiliation or employer, a description of the subject proposed, the sources to be used, and where it fits within or how it relates to the current literature on the topic, together with address and email contact details. Submissions should be made to jwpc2@cam.ac.uk. The last submission date for the abstracts is 29 November 2021.

Publication

Successful papers will be prepared for publication in May and printed in July. The proceedings are published as an edited book.

All final accepted papers must be presented at the conference by at least one of the authors

Papers will only be accepted by those who are prepared to pay the full registration fee (in the region of £65-100 per day) and are able to attend the conference. The conference is on the 31 March 2022 in Queens' College, Cambridge.
